YOUNG BLOODS OF BETHEL MAKE MAJDEX SPEECHES IN CAUSE OF DEMOCRACY

The drive for new Democratic voters in Bethel was brought to a triumphant close Sept. 7 by the Election Ball which was sponsored by the Young Democratic Club. This event, the first of its kind in Bethel, was a huge success. Three hundred loyal supporters of Democratic principles were present. It would seem that the person who said, "The good Democrats are like the good Indians, they're all dead" was terribly misinformed.

Hon. Paul C. Thurston was toastmaster for the evening, introducing the following speakers: Hon. Matthew McCarthy of Rumford and Fred Rowell of Norway. Later several members of the Young Democratic Club were called upon to make their maiden speeches in the cause of Democracy. In view of the fact that this was a spontaneous gesture on the part of the toastmaster, Carl Hansman, Ashby Tibbets, John Twaddle and Dorothy Edwards met the situation nobly.

The Young Democratic Clubs of Mexico, Norway, South Paris, and Bridgton were invited to be guests of the Bethel Club, and several of these Clubs were well represented.

Dancing and refreshments were enjoyed during the evening.

The Bethel Club hopes to make this only a beginning of their activities. They are deeply grateful to the members of the Democratic party who made this evening possible by their generous donations, and the Young Democrats of Bethel offer in return, their youth, their enthusiasm, and their wholehearted support to the cause for which the Democratic party was first organized, and for which it has always stood.

SOUTH PARIS MAN TO BE WALDO COUNTY AGENT

Philip S. Parsons, South Paris, has been appointed county agricultural agent for Waldo County, effective Oct. 1, succeeding Norman S. Donahue. It was announced Wednesday by Arthur L. Deering, director of the Extension Service.

Mr. Parsons was born and brought up on an Oxford County farm. He graduated from the University of Maine in June, 1934, receiving a bachelor of science degree. His major subjects were dairy husbandry. Three of his summer vacations were spent in working on the University farm.

Records at the University reveal Mr. Parsons as outstanding in scholarship and participation in extra curricula activities. He is a member of Alpha Zeta, national honorary agricultural fraternity. He was vice-president of his class in '32 and president in '33 and '34. He was president of the Senior Skull Society and a senior member of the athletic board. The Charles H. Hood Scholarship Fund was awarded to him two different years.

Mr. Parsons is a member of the Phi Nu Delta fraternity. Although a member of the track club his major athletic interest was in football. He saw three years service on the varsity team and was chosen captain in his senior year.

Mr. Donahue, the first and only county agent in Waldo County since the work was started 17 years ago, is entering a commercial business with headquarters in Belfast.

BRANN RE-ELECTED BY 23,000 MARGIN

Voters Favor Prohibition Repeal More Than 3 to 2—Hamilton Defeats Beedy in Close Contest.

The results of Monday's election can leave no doubt of the wish of the voters. Brann's victory, reported early Tuesday morning as a 2500 lead, crept up to 23,000 before the returns were all in. Apparently Senator Hale still holds his seat, although it is said that his opponent, F. Harold Dubord, will ask for a recount. In this district Representative Carroll L. Beedy, after serving seven terms at Washington, received 1638 less votes than Simon M. Hamilton of South Portland. In the second district Edward C. Moran Jr. (D) was re-elected over Zelma M. Dwinall, and in the third ex-Governor Brewster (R) defeated John G. Utterback, who sought his second term.

READING FUN IN STORE FOR BOYS

Here's important news for the boys of America. THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, the nation's quality magazine for boys, has been reduced from $2.00 a year to $1.00. The three-year rate, formerly $3.50, has been reduced to $2.00.

"For a long time we have been seeking a way to reduce the cost of THE AMERICAN BOY to readers," states Griffith Ogden Ellis, editor. "Recently we have effected savings that make the cut possible, and we think boys will agree that the new price is big news on the reading front. We hope boys will help us to spread the good news by telling their friends."

Along with the cut in cost, the magazine's publishers are planning a magazine that will continue to set the pace in fiction, articles and departments. The favorite characters of millions of boys will parade through THE AMERICAN BOY in new stories. Douglas Renfrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted, Hide-rack, the red-and-gold collie, Bone-head Jim Tierney, the detective, will give the reader many exciting hours in the months to come.

William Heyliger, whose true-to-life gripping vocational stories have won him wide acclaim from parents and librarians, as well as the hearty approval of boys, is working on new stories. Staff writers are interviewing famous coaches and world-renowned explorers to bring boys the color and fun of sports and travel.

In short, THE AMERICAN BOY, under its new price, will continue to give boys a magazine that measures up to the best standards set by adult magazines. Send your subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Enclose your name and address and the proper amount of money, and THE AMERICAN BOY will soon be headed your way, loaded with reading thrills. adv.

Fireflies Have Perfect

Lighting System of Own

Lighting bugs, glowworms and fireflies, as these insects are called, have a perfect lighting system which science has not been able to equal, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The light, which these insects carry and intermittently flash during summer nights, is not due to phosphorus, as is commonly supposed, because it glows in the dark with a green light.

The light is produced by two secretions, on which the introduction of oxygen has the effect of combustion.

Strictly speaking, the firefly is not a fly at all; neither is it a worm. It belongs to the beetle group of insects.

The appellation "glowworm" is due to the fact that the female of this species is wingless, and bears a striking resemblance to a worm, as does the insect in the larva stage. Not only is the adult, particularly the female, light producing; even in the egg, larva and pupa stages this organism gives off a pale phosphorescent glow.

Examined under magnifying glass, the lantern mechanism of the firefly appears on the last three segments of the abdomen. The microscope discloses further that this photogenic organ is made up of a ventral mass of large cells where the luminescence originates, and directly behind it is another layer of small cells which acts as the reflector. Two large tracheal trunks or air tubes pass into the light organ and branch out into every cell.
These tubes give an abundant supply of oxygen to the photogenic cells. Paralleling the air tubes is a system of white, threadlike branches which are the nerves controlling luminescence.

Londonderry Retains All

Charm of Its Many Years

With all its modern business, Londonderry retains all the charm of its hundreds of years. Locally it is known as Derry, having been named for the "Queen of Erin's daughter, fair Daire." The prefix was added when James I granted the lands about Derry to the city of London, says the Chicago Daily News.

The indignant Irish pledged themselves to inclose Derry within walls to preserve its freedom and Irish individuality. The ancient walls still stand, girdling the middle of the hill on which the city is built, though Londonderry itself has long since spread beyond their confinement. The walled area is more than a mile in circumference, but has only seven gates, so that one must make quite a jaunt to find a passageway through them.

Londonderry is the site of the abbey founded by Columba, one of Ireland's greatest saints. In the distance, on another high hill, looms the ancient stronghold of the lords of Tyrone, which both St. Columba and St. Patrick are said to have visited. Here, too, the massive stone wall still stands though the old castle has disappeared.

THE STORY OF AMOS LUND

BY D. S. BROOKS

Chapter II

I wish to make it plain to those who did not read Chapter One of this story that "Amos Lund" is not the birth name of my friend, but he has adopted it for the amusement it gives him when he sees it in print. But the name of Lund has been borne by many of his English ancestry. And "Amos" has been a very common Christian name in the generations past, such as Sir Amos Chamberlain and Lord Amos Edison Ross. These, and others, were relatives on the maternal side in old England. So the combination of names gives an added touch of interest in reviving memories of his honored relatives in the days of (King) Henry VIII.
But when my chum comes next year to Bethel upon a week's visit the laugh will be on Amos, for I shall introduce him by his legal name. No doubt, many of you are familiar with his other name and have read about this man's activities in his own state. Possibly you have heard him speak over the radio. He is one live wire! But for a time, I am keeping a great secret.

Amos has taken a lot of interest in Bethel ever since I wrote him that first long letter about this town in May, 1930; setting off the village with its many fine and interesting people. He says he passed through here once on the train when a small boy, accompanying his father from their summer home at North Livermore to Montreal.

Just before the time Dr. William R. Chapman's musical masterpiece was rendered in New York, in honor of Franklin Roosevelt. I notified Amos to be sure and attend.
He is a "critic," being, himself, somewhat of a musician. When he was eighteen he played the big pipe organ in a Baptist Church in his home city. His ability attracted considerable attention and many predicted he would make music his life's vocation. But, not so! Amos is a born politician. Well, Amos went to New York at the appointed time; and wrote me shortly afterwards that it was a great treat, that he would like to, personally meet Dr. Chapman and pay his compliments direct. Amos is outspoken in his praise, or criticism, of people or things.

Amos attended Princeton, when Woodrow Wilson was college president. As a student, he confided his ambitions to Mr. Wilson, and received much encouragement to go on with his plans. After graduation he decided to study law at Harvard.
This, he did creditably. When he had finished the course of legal training, he returned to his home and was admitted to the bar. He did not seem to care to go immediately to practicing his profession, but rather, first, to have an interview with his beloved friend, Woodrow. Mr. Wilson told him there was a vacancy, caused by death, in the faculty, and urged Amos to teach. It was then that Princeton honored him by offering a professorship. Amos Lund accepted, teaching four years, and was given a raise of two hundred dollars in salary to remain, but he resigned to immediately enter upon a political career. It was about this time that the great Democratic Convention nominated Woodrow Wilson for President of the United States. Amos began campaign speeches for his hero, starting in New York state. There were great orators in the field for the three major parties. The Progressives were an off-shoot of the Republican Party with "T. R." for standard bearer.

And the Hon. W. H. Taft was running for re-election by the Republicans.

I was preaching, at the time, down in York County; and, I told several party leaders, in that territory that the split in the "G. O. P." would cause the victory to go to Mr. Wilson. I feel it was no great prophecy. Most anyone could easily have predicted the outcome. Amos got down-right busy. Letter writing on his part almost temporarily ceased. He only communicated with me occasionally. I could easily forgive him. Once he wrote that one of his evening speeches was made from the same platform, where, earlier in the day two addresses were given: one favoring T. R., and the other echoed for Taft.
"Mud-slinging" bespattered all honor and decency. Amos happened to arrive in New York City in the morning and listened to both of these "outbursts" from high-tempered orators. His letter said it filled him with disgust. He did not anticipate much of an audience for the evening, but reserve-seat tickets were issued to a great crowd and the hippodrome was filled until there was no standing room left. He used a megaphone.
In a part of his speech, as I read on, the letter said he told his auditors that he did not believe in daubing the reputations of opposing candidates, that he considered such practice as unmanly and vile!
He closed his letter to me by saying, "Squire, I had a most attentive audience. No 'hissing' nor other disturbances. I talked rapidly for an hour and stopped instantly when I had made my points.
Then,—such a noise of applause.
The one hundred piece band couldn't drown it."

"Canning tomatoes is not a matter of luck but of perfect fruit and proper handling," says Mrs. Agnes Gibbs, Home Demonstration Agent in Cumberland County. She mentions as important factors in tomato canning: "Use only perfect fruit, can only a few at a time so that they won't have to stand long at any stage of the process, and be sure that the jar rubbers are clean."

Size of the Brain

It would be difficult to prove that the size of the average brain has increased to any great extent during the centuries. Examination of the skulls of persons who died centuries ago does not indicate any particular change in size. However, various authorities claim that weight of brain has no direct relationship with intelligence. Exceptionally large brains have been found both in great geniuses and in imbeciles. Intellectual capacity is said to depend on the great multiplicity of nerve cell connections rather than on weight or size of brain. In any comparison of this kind the value of the accumulated knowledge of the ages should be taken into account.

Chrysanthemum Royal Insignia

The chrysanthemum, from its long association with the Imperial family, is held in particular esteem by the Japanese who annually hold a fete in its honor. To the many varieties with which we are familiar these master florists have added many strange and beautiful forms.
They have produced plants with five or six varieties of size and color on the same stem, plants that will grow only one enormous flower and plants with more than a thousand blossoms.

Moonlight in Arctic Region

The moon shines in the Arctic and Antarctic regions for a part of the time during the long nights. At the pole itself the moon is above the horizon continuously during one-half of each lunar month, and below the horizon continuously during the other half. In the winter time full moon occurs when the moon is above the horizon and new moon when it is below, while in summer time new moon occurs when it is above the horizon and full moon when it is below.

WHY?

Strickland Gillilan

Oh, I work like hell, and I laugh well,
Till the tears are in my eye,
And all to defeat a tendency To yield a strong ascendancy To a never-answered Why.

The Why that I seek till my is weak,
If I let my mind run free, Is the whelming Why of the and sun,
The Why of the course we hum-run—
The Why of You and Me!

Come times in dreams when answer seems
So near I almost win it, Yet I wake and know 't was dream; and weep
And pray I again may fall as-
To end or re-begin it.

When, home from my toil and day's turmoil,
I am met by child or wife At my own front door in the lambright,
It almost comes to my reach—quite—
This Why of Love and Life.

So I work like hell and I laugh
well,
And plead that the ache die—
The ache of a feeling beyond trol
That harries my heart and scores my soul,
The answerless, age-old Why?

WHY DON'T YOU LAUGH?
The Independent

Why don't you laugh, young when troubles come, Instead of sitting 'round so and glum?
You cannot have all play
And sunshine every day;
When troubles come, I say, don't you laugh?

Why don't you laugh? 'Twill help to soothe The aches and pains. No real life is smooth;
There's many an unseen bump
And many a hidden stump O'er which you'll have to Why don't you laugh?

Why don't you laugh? Don't your spirits wilt; Don't sit and cry because the you've split;
If you would mend it now, Pray let me tell you how:
Just milk another cow! Why you laugh?

Why don't you laugh, and us all laugh too,
And keep us mortals all from ting blue?
A laugh will always win;
If you can't laugh, just grin—Come on, let's all join in!

Secondary Education

Secondary education is the training provided by high schools, which give instruction between elementary or primary schools and the college. Secondary in contradistinction to elementary is used in both the United States and Great Britain to describe a system of education above that offered by the elementary schools and below that provided by the institutions of higher learning, and Matthew Arnold was the first to use the term in this sense. He adapted it from French usage. The high school as we know it is a distinctly American institution. Such a school, known as the English High School of Boston, was established in 1821, and was probably the first institution of its kind in the United States. Every state maintains free high schools at public expense.

Birds Found on Many Stamps

Birds have been incorporated in many issues of Japanese postage stamps. On that of 1875, are found the wild goose, the wagtail and the falcon, each significant in the country's folklore. The wild goose is emblematic of letter-carrying, for, according to the story, an ambassador of one of China's early emperors was detained by a foreign monarch and reduced to slavery. The unhappy ambassador attached a letter telling of his plight to the leg of a wild goose and in some miraculous manner the goose flew over the spot where the emperor was hunting. The emperor killed the goose, read the letter and soon got his ambassador back, appropriately punishing the offending monarch. The wagtail is the Japanese equivalent of the serpent in our story of Adam and Eve. For anniversaries and coronations the crane and the phoenix are popular subjects, the former as a symbol of longevity from its reputed life of a thousand years and the latter, borrowed incidentally from the Egyptians, as a symbol of immortality, from its legendary ability to rise anew from its funeral pyre.

COOKING VEGETABLES TO CONSERVE FOOD VALUES

From a recent study made by the bureau of Home Economics on the best methods of cooking foods to retain food values, the following article is written:

Green, yellow and orange color in vegetables usually indicates the presence of certain vitamins. Heat tends to destroy some vitamins, and when vegetables are cut up and cooked in water some of the minerals dissolve. Chemical changes due to cooking also affect flavor, color, and texture. The science of cooking vegetables, says the Bureau of Home Economics, seeks to conserve all possible food values and at the same time give "appetite appeal."

Slow baking in a moderate oven comes first as a means of conserving food value in cooking vegetables. Potatoes, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes, and onions, for example, contain enough water to form steam and keep them moist, and the skin holds in the steam. In casserole cooking the earthenware baker, or heavy glass container, with a close-fitting lid, takes the place of the vegetable skin by holding in the steam and juices.

We can steam boil or pan vegetables that cannot be baked. Steaming conserves food value, but spoils the attractive green color of some vegetables. It is satisfactory for carrots, squash, sweet potatoes, parsnips, and wax beans.

Boiling requires less fuel than baking, but greater precautions are necessary to prevent loss of food value. Use a small quantity of water. Have it boiling when you put the vegetables in. Cook just long enough to make the vegetables tender.

Green vegetables lose their greenness very easily, so for spinach, brussels sprouts, green cabbage, snap beans, peas, turnip tops, and kale, leave the lid off the kettle. This allows volatile acids to escape and preserves the green color. Do not use soda to intensify greenness. It destroys some of the vitamins.

Fanning is an excellent and economical method for cooking vegetables. Cut the vegetable into small pieces and cook with a little fat in a fat covered pan. The water that cooks out evaporates, so there is no extra liquid, and the cooking time is so short that the loss of vitamins is probably slight.

"Substance is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Sept. 16. Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." (1 John 2:15)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, one of which reads: "The admission that there can be material substance requires another admission,—namely, that Spirit is not infinite and that matter is self-creative, self-existent, and eternal. From this it would follow that there are two eternal causes warring forever, with each other; and yet we say that Spirit is supreme and all-presence." (p. 278).
